Without the Mask.

From the N. Y. Evening Post. Since Brummel's tiff with the Prince of Wales, which was embelished by the memorable "Who's your fat friend?" put to a mutuel acquaintance by way of cutting the royal offender as he passed— there have been few instances when English subjects have ventured upon public quarrels with members of the family of the sovereign. An astonishing excep-tion has presented itself of which we have now only the opening incidents, but which promises to extend into a re-markable and interesting history.

Sir Robert Peel lately made a speech in the House of Commons in which he in the House of Commons in which he pronounced some slighting allusions to the same exalted personage. He spoke irreverently of him, that to say, not as Prince of Wales, but as George the Fourth. Now Vanity Fair, a publication which is called a "society journal" and is supposed in some occult way to represent the royal family, took up Sir Robert's remarks with no ltttle heat. Vanity Fair, in spite of its title, does not think Mr. Thackeray's example by any think Mr. Thackeray's example by any means a proper one. Or rather it probably holds that while one of them "dashed literary fellers" might be permitted to speak ill of the "first gentleman in The control of the control Europe," and the offence be passed by in contemptuous silence, such immunity is by no means to be conceded to a member of Parliament speaking within ear-shot of Buckingham Palace. Therefore Vanity Fair has gently delivered itself to the effect that Sir Robert Peel's speech the effect that Sir Robert Peer's speech has very naturally given great offence in consequence of his disrespectful allusion to George IV, and his personal remarks upon the Queen, and that "several members of the royal family have declared their intention never to take any notice of the property of the forture." of Sir Robert for the future."

To this in high dudgeon, Sir Robert has launched forth a flaming manifesto which is perhaps the boldest and sharpwhich is perhaps the boldest and snarpest piece of writing ever put in print by a member of Parliament about any person or persons of the royal family. Two hundred, or even one hundred years ago,
both Sir Robert and the editor of Vanity Fuir would long before this have been cooling their heels in the Tower. It is a suggestive commentary on the changed usage and temper of the times that up to have dragged you up." Too many friends but a man more than none at all. this day nothing has been done in regard to this curious attack, whatever steps may be contemplated for the future. Sir Robert shaped his onslaught in the form of a letter to the editor, and pays his compliments to the latter gentleman in passing. It would be a pity to omit or to cut the last paragraph of this curious missive, and we therefore give space to it as follows:

to it as follows:
"You appear to be instructed to make me a challenge, which, notwithstanding the channel through which it comes, I acthe channel through which it comes, I accept with great pleasure; and as you invite me to a game which two can play at, one of the parties in the contest may prove a pungent critic of the coming K—&Co; and by the way, I would advise you strongly, as you profess to be the depository of the Imperial confidence, to be a little more discreet in the circulation of your authorized versions of royal messages or they may get you into messages, or they may get you into trouble, dear Mr. Bowles. Like many others, I have put up with a good deal of your insolence from time to time, and, as your personalities have nothing in common with the houorable and legitimate-duties of journalism, you will find me now quite equal to the occasion. But as now quite equal to the occasion. But as in the present instance you act as the plenipotentiary of royalty, go and tell your master that I am not the sort of man to be smothered by imperial and me worldly wisdom, no misanthropic plos ophy, no generalization, can cover or weaken truth. It stands like the record of itself—for it is nothing less than this —and should put an everlasting action. man to be smothered by imperial men-aces, and, unless I receive the most am-ple satisfaction from the royal sources which have made you their most impudent mouthpiece, I shall send a copy of your statement, together with a copy of my reply, to the Prince of Wales and to the Dake of Cambridge. And, as you have published and circulated such a declaration of the intentious of the Royal family with respect to my remarks in the House we get stuck on a venerable pair of chickof Commons, I shall avail myself of a ens. fitting opportunity to publish and to pla-card in London and the Provinces, under the heading of 'Sir Robert Peel and the rest of the Royal family,' both your official notification of the royal message and my contemptuous acknowledge-

It was necessary to get into the nineteenth century, and to get near the end daring a letter as this, and what is to there appears to be no dignified or becoming path whatever. The mild disclaimer of responsibility for Vanity Fair that has been put forth touches only the outer edge of the matter. That Sir Robert Peel contemplated and perhaps chuckled over this embarrassment as a fruit of his amazing procedure is very likely to be true; but if such is the fact it should be said that to inflict an insult that cannot be resented is scarcely to be accounted a proof of chivalry.

GOOD WORDS OF ADVICE.—Physicians say that every kind of cold, bronchitis, diptheria, sore throat and pulmonary complaints are remarkably prevalent now. Sensible people ought to reflect that nine-tenths of these troubles arise from preventable causes. Wet feet are probably the first cause of a good many of them. There is no excuse for any one who catches cold from wet feet. Overshoes are cheap, and in this climate they ought to be worn all the time between the 1st of November and the 1st of May. It is never safe without them, except in summer. Henry Ward Beecher ascribes his robust health mainly to the wearing of overshoes; and all other men who know how to take care of themselves testify to the same effect. Another cause of throat and lung diseases is insufficient clothing. Girls and women who go "lownecked and short-sleeved" to parties, take off their flannels to do so; and when consumption declares itself, wonder how they got it. A still more general cause is overheating and bad ventilation indoors. The lungs, parched and poisoned in the house, are in ill condition to breathe cold or moist air out doors. Carbonic-acid gas puts them in a state of incipient inflammation before they meet the fresh air at all. Attention to these simple dictates of common sense would prevent, we believe, a large proportion of the colds in this community which do not come from constitutional weakness or predisposition; and in the latter class of cases the need of careful watching is greater.

- A colored minister in Georgia was brought to trial before his church on a charge of stealing bacon. After a num-ber of witnesses had been examined, the deacons retired, and soon afterward returned the following verdict: "The Rev. Moses Bledso am ackwaitted of de sinuations dat he actual stole de pork, as 'twas not shode dat sumbody else miteh't have been wearin' his cloze, but brudder is hereby 'fectionate warned dat in de future he must be more keerful."

A BALL 1,000 FEET UNDERNEATH THE GROUND .- The Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise says: A ball was last night given by Captain Matt Canavan at the New York mine, Gold Hill, of which mine he is superintendent. The ball took place at the new station opened at the depth of 1,040 feet below the surface. This station is quite as large as an ordinary ball-room, well floored, walled in with substantial timbers and has quite a lofty ceiling. The station is cool and comfortable, was appropriately decorated for the occasion, and was lighted with lamps suspended from the ceiling. The ladies were dressed in calico and the gentlement in correspondingly inexpensive raiment. The furniture was in keeping with the place, and while there was furnished everything necessary to comfort, nothing very extravagant was seen. Never before in the United States—if anywhere in the world—has there been given a ball, at the depth of nearly a quarter of a mile beneath the surface of the earth. There was no trouble about persons slip-ping into the ball room without tickets. It was a queer way, too, of going to a ball this stepping upon a cage instead of into a carriage, and being darted straight down towards the centre of the earth in-stead of rolling off horizontally in the usual way.

HELP YOURSELF.—Fight your own battles. Hoe your own row. Ask no favors of any one and you will succeed five thousand times better than he who five thousand times better than he who is always beseeching some one's patronage. No one will help you as you will help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs. The first step will not be such a loug one. perhaps; but carving your own way up the mountains, you make each one lead to another, and stand firm in that while you chen still another out. Men who you chop still another out. Men who have made fortunes are not those who had $2,000 given them to start with, but started fair with a well earned dollar or two. Men who have by their exertions acquired fame, have not been thrust into popularity by puffs, begged or paid for, or given in a friendly spirit. They have outstretched their hands and touched the public heart. Men who win love do their own wooing, and I never knew a man to fail so signally as the one who had induced his affectionate grand mother to speak a good word for him. Whether you work for fame, for love, for money, or for any thing else, work with your hands and brain. Say "I will!" and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have it to say, "I have drawged you up." Too many friends. love do their own wooing, and I never

SLUES ON WOMEN .- Of all evils pre valent among young men, we know of none more blighting in its moral effects than to speak lightly of the virtues of women. Nor is there suything in which young men are so thoroughly mistaken as the low estimate they form of the in-tegrity of women. Not of their own mothers and sisters, but of others, who they forget, are somebody else's mothers and sisters. As a rule, no person who surrenders to this debasing habit is to be trusted with an enterprise requiring in-tegrity of character. Plain words should be spoken on this point, for the evil is a general one, and deep-rooted. If young men are sometimes thrown into the society of thoughtless or depraved women they have no more right to measure all other women by what they see of these than they have to estimate the character of honest and respectable citizens by the developments of crime in our police courts. Let our young men remember that their chief happiness in life depends upon the utter faith in women. No worldly wisdom, no misanthropic philosly of women .- Moore's Rural New York-

This important organ weighs but about three pounds, and all the blood in a living person (about three gailons) passes through it at least once every half hour, to have the bile and other impurities strained or filtered from it. Bile is the natura half hour, to have the bile and other impurities strained or filtered from it. Bile is the natural purgative of the bowels, and if the Liver becomes torpid it is not separated from the blood, but care ried through the veins to all parts of the system, and in trying to escape through the pores of the skin, causes it to turn yellow or a dirty brown color. The stomach becomes diseased, and Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Billousness, Jaundice, Chills, Malarial Fevers. Piles, Sick and Sour Stomach, and general debility follow. Merrent: Herrature, the great vegetable discovery for torpidity, causes the Liver to through off from one to two ounces of bile cant time the blood passes through it, as long as there is an excess of bile; and the effect of even a few doses upon yellow complexion or a brown dirty looking skin, will astonish all who try it—they being the first symptoms to disappear. WE are agents for the above celebrated Fertilizers, having sold Bradley's Patent for several years, we know it to be good. As to the ACID there is none better. See Mr. B. A. Davis' certificate attached. Could give more, but one is sufficient. Our terms are as favorable as any Standard Guano. Give us a call before buying.

ANDERSON, S. C., Sept. 30, 1878—Mexers, A. B. Towers & Co.—Dear Sirs: I beg leave to say to you that I am well pleased with the Bradley's Guano that I bought of you last Spring. In fact I do not think there is any other guano equal to it except perhaps one other, and there is no man who has used a greater variety of fertilizers than I have. I shall want it again, and a great many of my neighbors expect to use it next year, just from seeing my cotton.
